BRITISH

pressing home the offensive which the British say has crippled half of Mussolini's battleships and given the Empire's combined sea-air power prestige throughout the world.

At Taranto, where three battleships and four other warcraft of Italy's hoarded battlefleet were reported crippled by naval torpedo planes flying in from aircraft carriers Monday night, planes of the RAF bomber command followed up. The ministry of information said that they successfully attacked both harbor and docks, and that all returned to their base (perhaps Malta or Crete).

In Berlin, British bombs burst in answer to Hitler's newest stroke of diplomacy. They gave Russia's Premier Molotov his first taste of what an air raid is like. Moreover, the air ministry said that the raiders bombed a railway station, freight yards and other objectives in mid-Berlin, despite miserable flying weather.

There was evidence, too, of aggressive British preparation for defense of Far Eastern bases and possessions.

An air marshal, Sir Robert Brooke-Popham, was made commander-in-chief in the Far East with headquarters in Singapore and it was disclosed that reinforcements had reached British bastions in the Orient.

Naval Planes Turned Back.
Two light formations of German planes stabbed at London but British reports said all were turned back by defense fighters before reaching the capital proper.

A few planes which reached the edge of the London area headed around without dropping bombs.

The Royal Air Force reported it cleared the skies in less than half an hour.

Weather in the Strait of Dover moderated after last night's gale, one of the worst of the year, which hampered the activity of night raiders.

In the 12 months since the first bomb of the war dropped on British soil in an attack on the Shetland Islands Nov. 18, 1939, the government has reported 2,873 raiding planes shot down during assaults on the United Kingdom and shipping.

Heavy Loss in Men.
This represents an approximate loss of about 7,200 men, Royal Air force defense losses in this same period were reported at 815 fighters, but 405 of the pilots were said to have been saved. Bombing casualties in the year were reported at about 15,000 killed and 21,500 wounded, 75 per cent in the London area.

The government meantime announced the strengthening of British forces in the troubled Orient and appointment of Air Chief Marshal Sir Robert Brooke-Popham as commander-in-chief in the Far East, a new position.

Its announcement said "further reinforcements already have reached the Far East" but there was no amplification as to the type or number.

Sir Robert—known as Brookham in the service—becomes the first Royal Air Force officer ever to assume such rank. He will begin his new duties soon with headquarters in Singapore.

CORSICANA, TEX., NOV. 15, 1940

WAR-WEARY

Raymond Leslie Buell said in his book, "Isolated America," that this was the most unpopular war in history. It was entered upon reluctantly by all the peoples concerned, even the Germans. Their very reluctance made some of the nations easier prey than they would have been otherwise. It was the widespread reluctance that made Munich possible.

This mood has increased with the progress of the war. A correspondent in the Balkans reported recently in the New York Times that the general feeling there was a longing for the end of the war, regardless of how it ended.

Hitler, whose shrewdness must be the despair of his antagonists, is playing on that reluctance now in his intensified diplomatic activity. He is trying to build a "peace bloc" of conquered Europe and use it to isolate Britain. He hopes that leaders who hesitate to fight for him—such as the French and Spanish—will join a watertight consolidation against Britain just for the sake of having the war come to an earlier end.

It may be that his attitude reveals something about his own reluctance to push this war much farther along the line taken in the summer and fall. Says Anne O'Hare McCormick: "Hitler tries to organize the war-weary because he is probably the war-weariest of them all." Here's hoping!

JAPAN IN RETREAT.

In spite of the frequent bombing of the Burma Road, the Chinese are feeling good lately because they are getting war materials through to Chungking for their army. Also because of the withdrawal of the Japanese army from the province of Kwangsi, to the east of the Burma Road, which helps to relieve the pressure. The Chinese claim a big victory there. And they seem to be making gains lately on all the important fronts.

There may be a new international peril, however. The pride of Japan has been hurt by failure to conquer China, and it would be natural to expect some new military venture to restore Japanese prestige. The army has failed, but the navy remains and is eager for action. Some observers suspect that there may be a sudden naval drive against the Dutch East Indies. The Japanese greatly covet that rich region, which would restore their "face" and give them important materials they now lack—rubber, oil, tin and other things.

It would also raise some very delicate questions between Japan and the United States. Those materials are also important to us, and our government has warned Japan not to attempt any conquest there.

You have a blue-eyed daughter, too
Devoiled wholly unto you."

Now there's a man whose hair is gray.
A lot about him I can tell.
His middle name begins with A.
I'm sure his surname I can spell.

At present he is very well.

That fellow's both your first and last.

At times he drives you fairly mad.
But you've outlived each other's fury blast.

What? I'm an idiot you say
And turn away in scorn from me
Because by readings sad or gay
I offer absolutely free.

PATIENCE WITH A NEIGHBOR

PATIENCE WITH A NEIGHBOR

Poor President Cardenas of Mexico has a hard time steering a straight course in his international relations. Recently it was reported that a trade agreement had been made with Japan whereby that country would obtain certain important supplies from Mexico. Next it was announced that an embargo had been placed on all such exports. Then came the decision to lift the embargo because it would "cut off enough trade to cause serious disturbance to the Mexican national economy." It was discovered that Mexico needed to export those materials just as greatly as Japan needed to import them.

The embargo had been called an "act of hemispheric solidarity." Its removal, a government official hastened to explain, "does not imply any change in Mexico's foreign policy of friendship and collaboration with the United States."

"Should the international situation make it necessary," he added, "I am confident that Mexico would co-operate with the United States and the other American republics by officially proclaiming such an embargo against Japan."

People who ought to know the situation tell us that Cardenas really wants to cultivate friendship and co-operation with our country. But about the time we began to count on his good will, the difficulties in the Mexican regime became more numerous and dangerous. Anger from north of the Rio Grande would not be helpful, but a careful study of the facts, as truthful observers report them to us, may make possible a friendly solution of our trade and other mutual problems.

TRAGIC JOKE

Of all the hallowe'en mishaps, perhaps the most foolish and tragic was that of the boy who scared motorists. He would saunter, with some young friends, along a highway that was not very well lighted, looking for a victim. When he saw a car approaching he would lie down in the road crosswise, until the driver suddenly saw him and stopped the car with a great grinding of brakes. Then he would jump up, laugh at the scared motorist and run along.

It worked all right until a motorist swung around the corner and along the road at a brisk speed without seeing him. Naturally he ran right over the lad. When he other boys rushed back and picked him up, the joker was unconscious, with a broken leg and a crushed chest. He died on the way to the hospital.

It is an unpleasant story to tell, but it should be told to every boy in America who has ever played, or thought of playing, the suicidal trick.

Yes, an election time is a time of promises, but things will be more promising now that it's over.

ON EDGE!COUNTY TENTATIVELY AGREES CO-OPERATE ON POLICE RADIO

Agreement in a tentative way to co-operate with the city of Corsicana in sponsoring a N.Y.A. short-wave police radio station was made Tuesday by the commissioners' court. Returns of the general election, Nov. 5, were canvassed and declared and numerous other items were considered Tuesday afternoon.

Upon motion by Commissioner C. M. Fitzgerald, seconded by Commissioner C. C. Slaughter, the county agreed to co-operate with the city in the N.Y.A. police project not to exceed $125 for office equipment and to equip cars with receiving and sending sets when and if the final contract and agreement is acceptable.

Some claims were allowed. A claim presented by Doyle Pechouse, attorney, representing Mrs. Louise E. Hervey, former district clerk, for delinquent tax fees in cases filed in 1928 and 1929 and later paid, was rejected upon motion of Commissioner Fitzgerald, seconded by Slaughter. The commissioners' court in October, 1939, upon advice of an attorney, authorized the tax collector to remit court costs in those delinquent tax suits. Whether the county or the tax collector will be sued for the claim, amounting to $278.50, has not been officially announced.

E. Y. Cunningham, county auditor, said the general election of Nov. 5, cost $1,046.25. The resignation of J. H. Etter as constable of Precinct 4, the Dawson area, was received and accepted, effective immediately. Billie Lawrence, former constable, was named to fill the unexpired term.

The court recessed until Friday morning. Practically all bills were not allowed, pending the borrowing of additional money, as several of the funds have become exhausted.

The totals of the votes of the general election had not been completed Wednesday and the exact vote was not available.

The following is the financial statement of Navarro county departments as of Nov. 1, 1940, as presented to the commissioners' court Tuesday by E. Y. Cunningham, county auditor.

EMPLOYMENT FOUND FOR MANY PERSONS IN CORSICANA AREA

Employment was found for 299 persons in Corsicana during the month of October and in addition 299 laborers for farm projects were supplied, according to the monthly report of B. T. O'Connell, manager of the local office of the Texas State Unemployment Service.

Office representatives made 120 field visits during the month; a total of 194 new registrations for employment were reported along with 218 renewals. Initial claims for unemployment compensation were filed by 75 residents of Navarro county, in addition to two from other states.

Orders are held by the local office for national defense workers with carpenters in most demand at points where army barracks are under construction; other workers needed include riveters, sheet metal workers, draftsmen, saddlemakers and canvas goods workers.

Many Hogs Butchered In Navarro County

Reports from various sections of the county Wednesday were that many hogs were butchered Tuesday afternoon and Wednesday morning. The cold weather this week was the first favorable time during the fall thus far for hog killing.

Many farmers, however, kill hogs whenever they desire, and store the meat in refrigerating plants rather than cure and save for it on their own premises as was the practice in former years.

THIRD ANNUAL FROST HOMECOMING MONDAY FITTINGLY OBSERVEDHUNDREDS FORMER FROST RESIDENTS RETURN, MINGLE WITH OLD FRIENDS

Hundreds of former Frost residents attended the third annual Homecoming celebration Monday at Frost, according to an announcement here Tuesday morning by E. D. (Dit) McCormick, mayor of Frost.

The dinner provided by the Frost citizens was served in the Methodist church. A big sing-song was held during the morning hours under the direction of W. C. Mimms. Approximately 1,000 visitors had registered at the noon hour, while those arriving in the afternoon were not counted.

Three awards were made. Mrs. J. M. Beene of Las Cruces, N. M., received the prize for coming the longest distance for the celebration—802 miles. Mr. and Mrs. O. M. Sellers of Midlothian won the award for the third time as being the oldest married couple to attend. They had been married 53 years.

Mrs. Mary Moore, aged 86 years, San Angelo, received the award as the oldest homecoming Mayor McCormick said Mrs. Moore had come to Frost on the two previous homecomings and visited relatives residing several miles from Frost. On both previous occasions she had been unable to attend the celebration because of rains that made the roads impassable, and this time she remained in Frost so she would not be marooned and unable to attend after making this trip.

No set program is ever carried out, but about 20 impromptu speeches were made by visitors. There had been some discussion of changing the time from Armistice Day, Nov. 11, to Labor Day, but the group Monday, Mayor McCormick stated, decided to continue the observance on Armistice Day.

A dance Monday night concluded the observance. Many of the visitors arrived Saturday and Sunday to spend several days with friends and relatives.

Attractive Display For Red Cross Roll Call in Window

An attractive display boosting the annual Red Cross Roll Call in Corsicana has been installed in one of the windows of the Tessie Dickeson Studio which shows scenes from Navarro county towns who received aid from the mercy agency after being stricken by tornadoes in the past ten years.

A number of pictures of the destruction in the two storms at Richland, and the one at Frost are presented, made by Charlton Gunter of the Corsicana Daily Sun staff.

AGREEMENT REACHED BY WHICH JAPAN TO GET MORE PETROLEUM

IMPORTS FROM NETHERLANDS EAST INDIES MORE THAN TREBLED IN AMOUNT

BATAVIA, Netherlands East Indies, Nov. 14.—(AP)—An agreement under which Japan obtains an increase of her annual oil imports from the Netherlands East Indies from 494,000 to 1,800,000 tons, with big United States and British companies acting as importing agents, was announced here today.

The agreement was concluded between the Dutch Colonial and Oil Company officials and Tadaharu Mukai, chairman of the huge Mitsui interests and representative of Japanese oil companies, but the Standard Vacuum Oil Company and the Rising Sun Petroleum Company, Japan subsidiary of the British oil interests, will act as importers for the Japanese.

Officials of the Standard and Shell interest, extensive owners of East Indies oil properties and largest exporters from these islands, were consulted in the long, difficult negotiations which produced the accord.

LEGAL SALE OF BEER IN NAVARRO COUNTY ENDED AT MIDNIGHT

Local sale of beer in the central section of Navarro county, including Corsicana and adjacent territory, ended Wednesday night at midnight, under the results of the beer election held Sept. 27, at which time the drys won by a comfortable margin.

The eastern and western sections of the county had been under the influence of the time beer was legal under previous local option elections. Officers reported that night spots about Corsicana were crowded Wednesday night despite the inclement weather prevailing.

County authorities Tuesday morning said no complaints or arrests had been made for illegal beer sales.

even more immediate in the Far East. The Japanese, new partners in axis, are making military passes which indicate that they are about to penetrate to Saigon, at the tip of Indo-China, possibly in connection with Thai (Siam). That would put them on the flank of Singapore, Britain's great Far Eastern naval and air base, and it would put them in position to proceed to the Dutch East Indies.

But the British are sending Singapore an air marshal, the first of that branch to be chosen for such a post, to be their commander-in-chief in the Orient; to guard directly over Malaya, Burma, Hongkong and the British air forces of the east, and to work in coordination with British naval commanders in China and the East Indies and with the commander-in-chief of India.

BATHS.

How many of you take hot baths daily—really hot baths? And I suppose most of you who will admit to this, would also have to admit that you have dry skin on your face and body.

Of course you have! Taking a hot tub—so hot that you practically melt your way into it—is very bad for your skin, because it removes the natural oils and causes the skin to become excessively dry. And you know that when the skin has been dry over a long period of time it will become wrinkled and old in appearance. Hot baths are not good from a health standpoint either, because they are too enervating. Far better for you are the medium warm baths which can be just as effective from a standpoint of cleaning and still not have any detrimental effect on the skin.

When the children were small, I used to test their tub with my elbow—a very old fashioned method. But it worked because if the water feels comfortably warm on the elbow it is about body temperature—the correct degree of heat. But if you want to be quite modern and efficient you can use one of the attractive bath thermometers and when the dial indicates something between 98 and 100 degrees, keep it there. When you have become accustomed to the "feel" of this temperature, you won't need a gauge any more. So often, one hears complaints about chapped skin on the shins of the legs—and blame it on a combination of sheer cold and windy weather. But if these people will change the temperature of their daily tub, they will find that this trouble will disappear. However, it is always well to rub a dry skin lotion or "weather" lotion on the legs during the very cold weather, as an extra precaution.

Another cause of dry skin on the body is the too free use of bath salts. When questioned, most girls will say that they "just" put in the bottle and sprinkle some into the tub. And this "resquecarbonate of soda" which is the technical name for bath salts is very drying when improperly used. One level teaspoonful is sufficient to soften and perfume the water—more than this is wasteful as well as a cause of roughened skin. If you prefer bath oils—and I find them pleasant—just a few drops are all that are needed. Fine oils or verbenas odors, are grand—so pungent and pleasant. Have you tried them? But do make your bath a luxury—it takes no extra time and is so very inexpensive.

MARGARET SULLIVAN IS HELPING TO FIND BETTER TEACHING

AUSTIN, Nov. 14.—(Spl.)—Margaret Sullivan of Corsicana, member of a University of Texas experimental class in education, is helping to find better methods of teaching to be used in tomorrow's high schools. The project is co-sponsored by the University and the Commission on Teacher Education.

To individualize teacher training, this 27-member class is being taught alternately by ten different University educators. Research in the problem is also being conducted by a second-hand-picked class, now testing a variety of teaching methods in Austin public schools and by two faculty committees continuing a study begun last year of improved teaching methods for social studies and sciences.

Dr. C. L. Cushman, commission representative who visited the campus twice last year, is soon to re-survey the University, one of thirty-four colleges and schools co-operating in the program.

Munitions Speedup. LONDON, Nov. 14.—(AP)—A speedup of munitions industries which involve drafting 1,000,000 men and women from non-essential industries and from among the unemployed has been ordered by the government.

The objective of the plan is to bring Britain's production by the end of the second year of war, to the peak attained in 1918, four years after outbreak of the World War.

"They were marching in four columns of three battalions each. As soon as the fight began and the first machine-gun bursts were fired, the Italians were thrown back and started retreating in a northeasterly direction.

"A company of Greek cavalry under Captain Tavoularis simultaneously attacked Samarina (a Greek town in Epirus) and forced about 2,000 Italians there to leave in the direction of Mount Smolika, taking the difficult pass which leads toward Distrato.

"In a ravine locally called Pralio, we took our first 11 Italian prisoners without resistance. They raised their hands and shouted 'Viva, Greece.'

"Our march forward was delayed by material, such as machine-guns, automatic guns, and boxes of hand grenades and ammunition, strewn over the pass.

"At 3 p. m. my battalion attacked, pressing around Distrato. A fight developed in the ravine hills and was trying to climb Mount Smolika to gain a dominant firing position.

"A night attack launched by more battalions drove the Italians back north toward Smolika and threw them into the ravine.

Fighting Continues Six Days. "There the fighting continued for six days. The Italians, being chased back from hilltop to hilltop, managed to take advantage of the terrain to circle about.

"At 1 p. m. on Nov. 5, I received orders to attack and occupy a strategic height with one company of infantry. The height was held by about 400 Italians with full equipment. They were supported by batteries on a hill 1,000 yards away, but by 2:30 p. m. the height was taken, the Italians driven back, leaving behind 64 dead and wounded and 27 prisoners.

"I was wounded in this engagement. The Italians, fighting in small groups of about 25, retreated in panic. My forces carried on the fight through Nov. 6 when reinforcements arrived. My men were so enthusiastic that I could not hold them back.

"On Nov. 6 the Italians still were being hotly pursued in the direction of Kozitza when the retreat developed into an irregular flight, the Italians throwing away their equipment.

"Up to 8 o'clock that night, we had taken about 800 Italians prisoner and killed about 1,100. Many Italians Killed.

"On the snow-covered summit of Mount Smolika, which is 8,500 feet high (highest in that region), about 250 Italians were killed by bayonet charges and machine-gun fire.

"At 9 o'clock on the night of Nov. 6, an Italian cavalry column coming from the direction of Kozitza to assist the retreat was held and dispersed and itself, retreated in disorder.

"Panic spread to the whole column. They threw away everything they had in order to flee more quickly.

"We tied our prisoners together with ropes in groups of 15 and led them back, each group being escorted by two Greeks.
